Article Title: Blueberry Growers Seeing Prices Plunge

Article Date: May 2, 2017 Source: Providence Journal newspaper

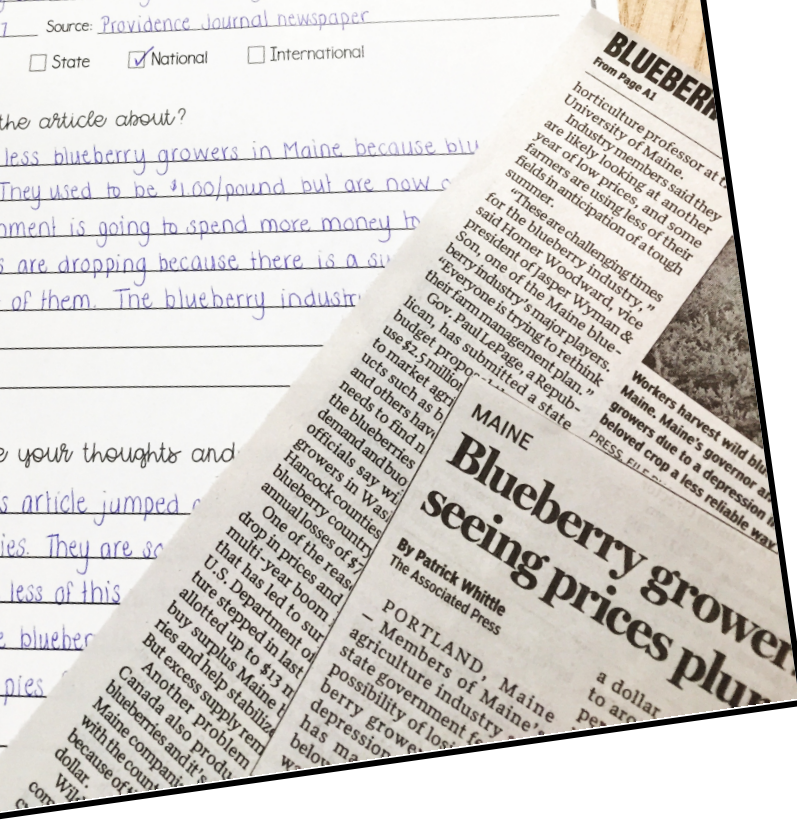

News Type: Local State National International

Summary: what is the article about?

There might be less blueberry growers in Maine because blueberry prices are dropping. They used to be $1.00/pound but are now $0.30/pound. The government is going to spend more money to help blueberry growers. The prices are dropping because there is a surplus of blueberries. Canada produces a lot of them. The blueberry industry is hurting consumers.

Reaction: what are your thoughts and feelings about the article?

This article jumped on me because blueberries. They are so important to produce blueberry pies.

Article of the Week Teacher Notes

As part of our Social Studies curriculum, we needed to incorporate current events into the classroom. I wanted my students to have the opportunity to think about and research topics that truly interested them. So we started Article of the Week!

Students would find an article in their local newspaper or from a reputable online source. I provided a few websites that had articles written specifically for students. This allowed them to learn about current events, but in terms that were easier for them to understand. We used:

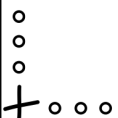

- DOGO News
- Newsela
- Time for Kids

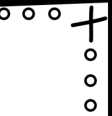

After reading the article, I encourage students to discuss it with a family member. This allowed for a deeper understanding of the content.

Students used the templates to write a short summary (5-7 sentences) of the article and their personal reaction to it.

I hope this is helpful for you!

Sara 😊
